But the New York Magnate Still Insists Upon Having His Demands Acceded To and the Circuit Negotiations Are Stopped -Will He Buy Players?-A Game of Delay

After wrangling all day both in the parlors of the Fifth Avenue Hotel and in neighboring resorts, the so-called magnates of the National League of Professional Baseball Clubs adourned at 8 o'clock last night to reconvene at 1 o'clock this afternoon. In other words a strong blockade had been constructed over which the circuit reducers could not climb. This was a surprising state of affairs in view of the peacemaking between Brush and Von der Horst at the Hoffman Club late on Tuesday night. When that conference, which was attended by Brush. Von der Horst, Hart, Robison and Hanlon, broke up at so'clock yesterday morning it looked as if the negotiations for an eight-club circuit would be successful without further delay. But when the delegates arrived at the hotel to go into session at 11 o'clock they learned that there was a serious hitch. President Young was ready to call the meeting to order on time. but no querum could be obtained. The representatives of the Brooklyn, Baltimore, Louis, Cleveland and Washington clubs were not in sight. Brush and Hart fldgetted about for an hour while Soden had nother heart-to-heart talk with the real leader of the League, Freedman. The latter soon went down town and the telephone bell in the Fifth Avenue Hotel began to ring a series of hurry calls. One of them summoned Conant and Billings of the Boston club to Freedman's office. The two magnates hurried away and in an hour they returned. Immediately the story was sprung that Conant had had trouble with the League's Sces. It was suid that Presdman, who is still unwilling to dignify the League meeting with his presence, had asked Conant to hold the proxy of the New York Club and that the Boston man had refused point blank. The rumor gained ground so rapidly that one of the evening papers came out with the yarn in red ink. Billings said:

We have had no trouble with Freedman at all. The story is false." As the hours passed by and no meeting was possible, it became noised about that the proceedings had been seriously blocked. When Robison and Von der Horst entered the hotel arm in arm at about 3 o'clock, they were urged to hurry into the meeting room. Robison had een singing songs of sweetness in Von der Horst's ears all the morning, but the Baltimorean was never weak on the flattery dodge and had refused to be won over by a mere flood of honeyed words. So when the request came for him to hurry up he sat down in a chair and lighted a cigar.

'I am in no hurry," said Von der Horst. "Neither am I," remarked his partner Abell, and that settled it. The magnates in sheer desperation then went upstairs without the Brooklyn-Baltimore men and and adjourned in a few minutes until 6 o'clock. When that time came Von der Horst said he had to go out to dine so there was another delay.

At 8 o'clock all of the magnates except Abell, Von der Horst, Hanlon and Ebbets were in the star chamber ready to proceed. The Circuit Committee was ready to report, so Brush said. but it was useless to proceed without the Brooklyn-Baltimore syndicate. Runners were sent out to bring in the missing "Big Four." and Abeli was found in the corridor, twirling his thumbs.

"I am waiting for my partners," said he. But they did not show up. At 9:30 o'clock the wearied moguls in the room upstairs decided to adjourn, but first of all they passed the following resolution:

Whereas, The interest in basebull throughout America is influenced to some degree by the conditions in the city of New York, the metropolis of the United States.

Whereas, The declining interest in the above-named city is mainly due to what the New York management believes to have been an unjust and un wise discrimination against its interests, the action of one of its duly organized boards, and

Whereas, The New York club management, not withstanding said discrimination, has at annual expense of many thousand dollars protected the National League and American Association from the disastrous consequences of rivalry of opposition leagues by control of Manhattan Field and by refusing tempting offers from organizations mimical to the interests of the League and baseball in general; now, therefore, in the interest of harmony within our organization and in recognition of lovalty under adverse circumstances, be it

general; now therefore, in the interest of narmony within our organization and in recognition of loyalty under adverse circumstances, be it

Resolved, That N. E. Young be directed to pay from any funds in his custody as Treasurer of the League, $1,000, with 6 per cent, interest, from Aug. 15, 1808, to date. This was a complete lay-down by the men

This was a complete lay-down by the men who control baselall in the United States. It meant that the $1,000 fine imposed upon Freedman for his share in the "Ducky" Holmes riot at the Polo Grounds had been refunded. As Freedman made this one of the conditions upon which he would agree to strengthen the New York team, it showed the abject subserviency of the magnates, who not more than a year ago were after the New York man with a read-hot poker.

serviency of the magnates, who not more than a year ago were after the New York man with a red-hot poker.

"Now we have pleased Mr. Freedman, sure!" the delegates said as they came down from the secret conference with smiling faces. "It was an unjust fine and Mr. Freedman was very badly treated, But now he is vindicated and will be very nice to us in future."

As a matter of fact a check for the above amount was paid to Freedman several days ago, it was said, but in order to surround the net with picturesque scenery the resolution was passed. It was significant that neither the Brooklyn nor Baltimore club was represented. The resolution was drafted by no other man than Brush, who was instrumental in having the fine inflicted. This sop to Freedman was in striking contrast to the knock-down administered to the Brooklyn club last fall, when a fine of $500 was imposed because of an alleged violation of the rules in the Wrigley matter. But then it must be remembered that Brush is a stockholder in the New York, not the Brooklyn club. The payment of the Holmes fine, it seems, was notenough to sooth the ruffled feelings of Freedman, whose whiplash was in fine working order and whose private telephone was kept constantly busy. As the magnates came across Yon der Horst. lash was in fine working order and whose provide telephone was kept constantly busy. As the magnates came across Von der Horst, Abell & Co., later in the evening there was a forlorn look on the part of the Freedmantles for they were surely between two fires. What Abell & Co., later in the evening forlorn look on the part of the Freedmanites, for they were surely between two fires. What was the cause of the blockade?

"Ask some of those other gentlemen!" replied the Brooklyn-Baltimore, men when questioned. Of course John I. Rogers, the Philadelphia lawyer for whom Fitzsimmons's bull-dog has fondest regards, was a willing spokes-dog has fondest regards, was a willing spokesmen.

The Philadelphia club," said he, "is willing to pay whatever is asked by the four retiring clubs. We wish to be liberal and do business in a business-like way. The trouble is caused, however, by one club, or possibly two clubs, that are unwilling to pay the amount. I do not say it is the New York club, and I do not say it is the Boston club, but, gentlemen, you can draw your own conclusions. The objectors say they are willing to pay the two Eastern clubs just as much as the two Western clubs for their franchises only, all of the retiring clubs to have the privilege of seiling their own players to the highest bidders."

That let one cat out of the bag and in a moment there was fun galore. A certain club owner said he heard the story that the proceedings had been blocked by nobody but ment there was fun galore. A certain club owner said he heard the story that the proceedings had been blocked by nobody but Rogers of Philadelphia, who had framed up a nacheme by which he intended to force the Brookiyn-Baltimore people to agree to a 12% cents division of rate receipts in the Quaker City. It was merely a hod-up, the magnate said. This information was sent to Rogers with a tip that Abell of Brookiyn had made the remark. Abell was not guity, but in a jiffy he was confronted by the Philadelphian, whose hands were working like windmills.

"I'm not blocking anything at all!" wailed Rogers. It is a base, unmitigated falsehood. Why, upon my honor as a gentleman and a soldier, I would not do such a thing!"

Abell was warm for a moment, but when he saw the humorous side of the case he went away laughing. The storm was quite heavy, and Rogers talked at great length. Soon the onlookers had a good line on the cause of the wrangle.

"Freedman is blocking, not Rogers" was the and Rogers talked at great length. Soon the onlookers had a good line on the cause of the wrangle.

"Freedman is blocking, not Rogers," was the explanation made by one of the club owners. "The New York man has the whip handle and he is rubbing it in. He will not agree to pay the price asked for the withdrawal of Battimore and will not take McGraw or any good players unless they are handed over to him for nothing. The more the magnates quit in response to the crack of the whip, the greater the demands. Freedman is willing to set aside a percentage of the gate receipts to pay for the franchisos of Washington, Baltimore, Gleveland and Louisville, and he wants to let those cities have about $19,000 apleee. Then they can sell their own players. He has been bluffing about putting up a 'barrel of money' for new players, and believes Ewing, the intended manager of the New Yorks, can get along with the material in hand together with the cast-offs of other teams. Freedman never paid more than $1,000 for a bailplayer since he secured the New York club, so it is natural for him to balk when he is requested to give up $15,000 for two such creeks as McGraw and Robinson. When Freedman pays any such price for stars the world will tip over. Soden is with Freedman, but the Boston man believes the Brooklyn-Baltimore syndicate will quit under pressure. The magnates are having a time of it and some of them are ready to throw up their hands. But Brush and Soden, who hold stock in the New York club, will see Freedman through."

When aske i to say something the Brooklyn-Baitimore men refused peremptorily. They wouldn't discuss anything, but it was plain to observers that they were fixed in their determination not to be builted or buildezed. Abell consented to say these few things for publication, however, just before he went home:

Thave been in taseball for eighteen years and in that time I have never known of a legally proper act by these men. They do not conduct their affairs nonorably and they know it. I may be censured by the so-called magnates for these remarks, but when I am, just watch my apology!" The delocates heard what conduct their affairs no orably and they know it. I may be censured by the so-called magnates for these remarks, but when I am, just watch my apology?"

When some of the delegates heard what Abell said they smiled faintly, and looked amazed. The Wagner brothers, owners of the Washington club, made an interesting statement to The Sun man last night.

"Our price is $46,500," they said, "and that is all there is to it. No bluffs go with us. We get the money or we go on in Washington."

Hanlon said at II o'clock last night that he would leave to-day for Baltimore to get McGraw's team ready to proceed South. He said it was high time to begin training the players for the coming championship race.

"Reduce the circuit." has been Freedman's cry all winter. "Abolish syndicate ball! I will not strengthen the New Yorks until that has been done!" Now the situation is up to Freedman and he balks, it would seem. The public has taken the New York man at his word. If the circuit is not reduced patrons of baseball, as The Sun saidon Monday, will know where to place the blame.

The threat of Ban Johnson to place an American League club in Chicago in spite of the wishes of the magnates does not worry Hart much, if his words are taken seriously.

"There has been a misunderstanding in Johnson's case." said Hart last night. "I did not promise him that he could have a club in Chicago, although he may have misconstrued my meaning. If the American League wants to put a club in Chicago it can do so, but not under the protection of the national agreement. If that agreement is violated why Johnson's league cannot hold its players. That's all."

Hart is credited with being fair minded enough to advocate the return of the $500 Wrigley fins to the Brooklyn Club. But the Philadelphia end of the late American Association. Regan, after looking the masnates over, went away satisfied that next year will be about right for another new organization.

The best indication that the magnates are killing baseball is the lack of interest shown by cranks

The New York A. C. players scored their two goals in the first half. Howard made the first goal after about seven minutes of play. He carried the puck down the entire length of the rink. The second goal was made by Hornfeck two minutes later. He scored from a scrimmage. Howard was suspended for three minutes for rough play. In the second half the Hockey Club did a little better; Russell made a goal on a pass by B. Phillips and the New York A. C. team was kept from scoring.

A young colored man, one of the attendants at the Berkeley School of this borough, wandered into the Clermont Avenue Eink in Brooklyn last uight with a big old gold and blue flag, some thirty-five feet in length. It was the banner of the Berkeley School taken from the flagsteff of the building and was to be used to herald a victory for the Berkeley team, winners of the New York interscholastic hockey championship in last night's game at the rink with the "Poly Prep" school. At a late hour last evening the voung colored lad was seen crossing the Bridge. In response to a query as to "How was the game?" he replied, as he tucked the flag into a ball so as to conceal it so far as possible. "Nuthin don", boss." The score of the game was ! Berkeley. O: "Poly Prep." 2. Thus the interscholastic championship follows the Amateur Hockey League senior champion-ship across the Bridge this year.

Thoroughbred Sale of International Inter-

The attention of all horsemen interested in the breeding and racing of thoroughbreds is to-day focussed on the dispersal sale of the late Duke of Westminster's stables. The star of the collection is Flying Fox, the four-year old son of Orme, who won the three great classic English events last year and also the two $50,-000 specials. He is estimated, even by conervative judges, as one of the most valuable servative judges, as one of the most valuable horses that ever wore plates and it is understood that if he is led into the ring a phenomenal reserve price will be placed on him.

The present Duke of Westminster is now wrapped up in the South African campaign, but English horsemen say that it is his desire to retain some of the late Duke's horses, especially Flying Fox. On the other hand it is rumored that W. C. Whitney is willing to pay considerably more for the grandson of Ormonde than the $150,000 which the latter cost W. O'B. McDonough some years ago.

The catalogue of the sale includes one five-year-old, two four-year-olds, four three-year-olds and eleven two-year-olds. All are said to be of the very highest class and brisk bidding will probably be the order throughout. The five-year-old is Calveley, by St. Serf—Sandiway. He has notable wins to his credit and important future engagements. Flying Fox's contemporary in age is Good Luck, a chestnut gelding by Royal Hampton—Farewell, who won several races last year. Gotlet, by Grev Leg—Kissing Cup, is said to be a grand three-year-old, but the palm in that division is conceded to Vane, a full sister to Flying Fox. The announcement that the Knickerbocker A. C. and New York A. C. would play the fluat game in the Metropolitan Championship drew the largest crowd that has yet attended the show at the evening session. The Knickerbocker A. C. won the best game ever played in this vicinity, and though the score was 4 to 1 in favor of the cherry diamond six, the issue was in doubt until the flual three minutes, when the Knickerbockers sprung a new trick on their rivals and scored two goals in rapid succession by sensational plays.

During the first half the New York players showed that they had improved since their Boston defeat and their vigorous tackling fairly nonplussed the Knickerbocker forwards. After 4 minutes 29 seconds Van Clef cluded the New York goal keepers and scored by underwater play. No further score resulted in the first half, and after five minutes' interval Reeder got the ball on the diveoff. It was passed back to the forwards, but the New York swimmers soon got possession and made repeated attacks on the Knickerbocker goal and a great shout went up when after exactly five minutes' determined work Fred Henck outfought the cherry diamond goal keepers and scored on a pass from Dickey. With only three minutes to play the New York supporters looked confidently forward to at least a draw, but the Madison avenue team had still a trick up its sieeve. Reeder again got the ball and in a few seconds it was passed to Handley, who, with Van Clef in front of him, was just outsids the N. Y. A. C. feur-foot line. Van Clef crouched low in the water and before either players or spectators could divine his purpose Handley perched on his completely demonsing in the water. The marvellous play had never been seen before and its successful execution completely demoralized the New York players. The time landed with the ball on the goal board and fell back with a splash in the proved it was no fluke by repeating the trick and scoring in 38.3-5 seconds.

It was tried a third time and was blocked, but Reeder scored the fourth and final goal for the Knickerbockers after a scrimmage in 41 seconds.

The aquatic events were also sensational.

E. C. Schaeffer won the 200 yard Metropolitan championship in the colors of the New York A. C. with ease, but the large contingent of Columbia supporters present yelled with delight when the four wearers of the blue and white beat the University of Pennsylvania team in the reswim of the relay race after the first tussle resulted in a dead heat. The success of the local university was mainly due to J. W. Spencer, who allowed the man twho followed him eight yards start on Pennsylvania's second man. This was increased to twelve yards when Nirdlinger, Columbia, and Schaeffer. University of Pennsylvania started for the final relay. The champion swam in grand form for the fifty yards, but failed to catch Nirdlinger by three yards.

A Hot Fight in Private.

In a place near Albany the other night a fast fight in private took place between Charlie Lynch of this city and Willie Smith of Manchester, N. H. The pattle was limited to twenty rounds and was fought with small gloves. Lynch, who is only 24 years with small gloves. Lynch, who is only 24 years old, belongs to several local athletic clubs and is regarded as very clever. He has never appeared in public and is looked upon among his friends as a "sentleman boxes."
They were supposed to weight in at 133 pounds, but Smith had the better of the weights by fully ten pounds. About twenty sports attended the afair by invitation. In the orst six rounds Lynch did good execution with the left and had Smith's face much battered up. Smith's superience and strength soon told, and in the off-seenth round Lynch was in such a bad way that the referee stopped further hostilities and awarded the contest to Smith.

NEWS OF THE WHEELMEN.

Chief Consul Belding Explains the L. A. W. and Automobile Club Hitch.

Chief Consul Belding, who speaks for the A. W. in New York State only and not for the national organization, after reading in THE SUN vesterday the statement that the Automobile the League giving its chief attention in this State to sidepath building and making good roads secondary mission. The reason for this, according to the Chief Cousul, is that the fact of there having been 167,050 sidepath license tags sold since the law was passed last March was a sufficient evidence that the wheelmen want the paths and are willing to pay for them rather than to wait years for good roads. In the second place he said that the hard roads will soon be overcrowded with automobiles running at the rate of from twenty to thirty miles an hour, which will make the highways unsafe for wheelmen until the road builders of the country have learned to build much wider and much better roads, and that is likely to be years from now, Mr. Belding confirmed the statement in THE SUN, which had been previously obtained unofficially, that the Automobile Club and the League had each declined to play "second fiddle" to the other.

In commenting upon the lighter wheels of 1900 a retail dealer of experience said: "It is already proving a popular move. I have a number of my old customers coming in seeking terms for an exchange. They want the lighter wheels and they should be furnished by the makers. I think they will want them lighter yet. From the tradesman's viewpoint the lighter the wheels the better. They should be made so that they do not give good service in the second year. The wheels of '99 and '98 were too heavy and too fought to wear out. The makers and dealers suffered because the wheels were too strong. On the other hand the rider gets more satisfaction out of having a new wheel every year. He does less, while half a dozen of the competitors were credited with 90 or more broken targets. The credited with 90 or more broken targets.

The March meeting of the Good Roads Association was a particularly interesting one. Vice President F. H. Vail presided in the absence of President Bell, who is ill and confined to his house. Treasurer T. Jeff Stevens made a rehouse. Treasurer T. Jeff Stevens made a report showing that the organization is in a healthy financial condition. H. B. Fullerton, chairman of the Long Island Committee, reperfed that the towns of the island are awakening to the need of improvements, that the town of Huntington has decided to spend $60,000 on roads, the town of Hivethead $8,000 and that Easthampton is discretized the second of the control of of Riverhead 88,000 and that Easthampton is discussing the advisability of spending $10,000. As a delegate from the association to the good roads meeting held at Albany recently Mr. Fullerton reported that there is a strong probability of the state appropriating half a million dollars for road improvement, which will mean that the various counties will also be assessed for another half-million. Lieut-Gov. Woodruff and Col. Partridge, who are members of the Good Reads Association, were reported to be adding the promoters of the bill. The project of making a plaza at the entrance to East New York was indersed by the association. The most interesting report was that of Alex Schwalbach, chairman of the Roads Committee. He stated that N. P. Lewis, engineer of the Department of Highways, had advised him that the long list of streets which the association had urged to be repayed.

Sidepaths, a monthly published in Rochester in the interest of cycloways, comments upon the proposed trunk-line rath between New York and Buffalo across the mountains back of Ringston, and suggests that it would be much more expedient to build the trunk path by way of Albany. Syracuse, Rochester and Batavia, A map of the State is now being made up by Secretary-Treasurer Bull of the L. A. W., with all sidepaths marked on it. This map, as far as completed, shows that by taking advantage of the paths already in existence a trunk path to Buffalo can be built much cheaper than one by the original route proposed. The gaps to be filled in between New York and Albany and from there to Buffallo could be easily done this spring by active cooperation between the Sidepath Commissioners. The map now being compiled will be published by the L. A. W. and will be of great value in helping riders to map out trips up the State.

The "trust," as the American Bioycle Com-pany continues to be known, has extended its grip beyond the sea, where various branch stores in London and other big cities have been consolidated. L. B. Whymper of this city, who formerly was a particularly active member of the Kings County Wheelmen, will have charge of the European affairs, with a headquarters in London.

The supplement to the L. A. W. Bulletin which is circulated only among the officers, contains this week the following: The wheelmen could, if united, have anything they wanted. They don't know their power, if, instead of flecking in singles with a cry of "What do I get formy dollar" they should unite with the L. A.
